Headline:
Very windy with blustery, heavy showers.

Today:
A very windy start with gales in places, particularly near the coast, and outbreaks of heavy rain. This soon clearing to sunny spells and scattered showers, but remaining windy. Showers turning heavy in the afternoon, with a risk of hail. Maximum temperature 12 deg C (54 deg F).

Tonight:
Winds easing a bit this evening as showers generally clear, to leave a largely dry night with prolonged clear spells. Minimum temperature 4 deg C (39 deg F).

Friday:
A bright start, but soon becoming rather cloudy as showers, heavy at times, spread in from the west. Breezy, but wind and showers temporarily easing later in the day. Maximum temperature 10 deg C (50 deg F).

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Windy Saturday with sunny spells and showers. Less windy on Sunday with showers becoming increasingly isolated. Largely dry Monday, with light winds and bright or sunny spells.
